Songs are an excellent way of transmitting culture and showing grammar structures. Vicotr, a teacher in Florianopolis, Santa Catarina in Brazil, has created twnety worksheets from the lyrics of twenty songs that are ideal for beginners. Mario and Steve have selected more than 100 songs to add to Victor's list and given you online resources to quickly assemble a classroom resource for your students to study. You are invited to share your suggestions to VisualAndActive@gmail.com for Volume 2 of this series. From Chapter Two (by Mario): "You will never conquer the language if you don't understand the culture that the language expresses. You can immerse yourself more in a language when you study songs. When someone is singing, I have to understand what they are saying. "I'm a person who wants to know what's being said. I prefer to listen closely to the poetry of Billy Joel than to hear the rhythms of a popular song. When I choose a song for my classes, I look for songs that touch social situations in a deep way, such as "Blowing in the Wind" by Bob Dylan. These songs allow you to enter the minds of the lyricists. The Challenge for Teachers: Yes, if your class is on the Internet, your students have access to more than 50,000 songs that have the ability to teach them something. But there are good reasons for teachers in classrooms with wifi to take time to download and distribute songs and lyrics to their students. Yes, your students can do this work... but: What happens if the wifi is down? Even with Internet, do you want to allow your students to wander? What distractions will pull your students off the targets that you want them to focus on?" (See more tips after page 9). -- Download this ebook at TransformTeaching.org
