This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1902 edition. Excerpt: ...administration, while Mr. McCuen, Superintendent of Motive Power, is a veteran whose years of wide research and thorough experience make him an authority in his line of work, and place him at the head of a department which, considering the results accomplished, and the material with which it is done, is probably not excelled anywhere. To the subordinates of the company, also, much credit belongs for the faithful and steadfast service which has made the Queen & Crescent a name that stands alone and unique among American railways for the completeness of its service to the traveling public. They cannot all be named in a volume of ordinary scope. Such men as Colonel James Arnold, Commercial Agent, at Cincinnati; E. Schryver, Assistant General Freight Agent, at Chattanooga; Mr. Beckler, Mr. Dunnivant and Mr. Lytle, of the passenger department; or Captain Hartwell Osborn, of the freight staff, have years of honorable and rarely efficient service to their credit, and can well consider that they have helped to write the history to which the pages of this volume are devoted. It is quite customary to give the traffic department of a railway line the publicity which they, as being the channel of communication with the public, usually secure, and which they should liberally share with their brethren in the shops, on the road, or in the dispatcher's chair. It is the purpose of this paragraph to once more emphasize the especial importance as to its relative bearing upon any history that ever may be devoted to the Queen & Crescent Route, of the great work of rebuilding, completion and rehabilitation which has fallen upon the operating officials of the line. Not only the officials, either, but with them, full praise to the many workmen who, often...
