She is a preacher's daughter, but you would never know it. Janet Connor isn't teaching Sunday school, singing in the choir, or sitting on the front row every Sunday. She is living and loving life, and pretending to be holy is the last thing on her mind.

Her father, Pastor Vincent Connor is dedicated to "Saving lives" and collecting the big bucks that come along with it. Life is good for them all until her father's secret life is now no longer a secret. "What goes on in the dark, definitely will come to the light and they are living proof. There is nothing that he won't do to keep his perfect image as the perfect pastor from being tarnished. He does the unthinkable to keep his other life hidden from his wife and daughter.

When the smoke clears will they be on opposing sides? Once Janet crosses her father, she is on the verge of ending up being a casualty of war. When water becomes thicker than blood, who can you trust?
